choosing your shower booster pumps

The chart below supplies all the information required to allow you to select your Bristan Booster Pump. Pumps are rated in bar pressure, one bar pressure is equal to raising your cold water tank/cistern by 10 metres above its current position, so a 2.0 bar twin Bristan pump is the equivalent to raising your tank/cistern 20 metres above its current position. This will create a high pressure shower.

Pump Selection

When selecting a pump, first check to see if the tap / shower to be pumped is designed for a low pressure or high pressure system. If designed for low pressure select our Medium Pressure 1.5 bar pump, however if it's designed for high pressure select our High Pressure 2.0 bar pump.

Twin Pumps

Twin pumps are designed to be installed between the cold water tank / cistern and the hot water cylinder so that they boost the water supply into the shower or tap.

Single Pumps

Single pumps can be used with a shower; the pump being installed to the mixer outlet, pumping the blended hot & cold water away from the shower valve and up to the shower head.

Single pumps can also be used to boost individual hot and cold tank fed water supplies to individual taps.

Controls

Bristan pumps are fitted with flow switches; these automatically start the pump once the flow from the shower / tap to be pumped exceeds 0.8 litres per minute. If your system has not got this minimum flow, contact Bristan for advice prior to purchase.

Pump Location

Bristan pumps are designed to be most effective pushing water, for this reason our preferred pump location is on the floor next to the hot water cylinder.

Hot & Cold Water Storage

Ensure that your Hot water cylinder & Cold water tank / cistern have sufficient capacity to meet the pumped demand.

Connections to the water supply

Cold Water Supply:
The pump must be supplied with a dedicated feed direct from the cold water storage tank / cistern.

Hot Water Supply:

The pump must be supplied with a dedicated feed direct from the hot water cylinder.
Connection using a Stuart Turner cylinder flange or factory fitted secondary tapping if fitting, or alternatively it can be the first draw off from the underside of the open-vent. Hot water should not exceed 65 degrees C entering the pump and must be free of air. Both hot and cold supply pipes should be fitted with full flow service valves to aid maintenance (not supplied)
Under no circumstances should the pump be connected either directly or indirectly to the cold water mains supply.

Electrical connection

The pump must be installed by a competent person to all relevant IEE Wiring Regulation (BS7671) and should be wired directly to a double pole fused spur, complying with BS 1363-4 and protected with a 5 Amp fuse.

Full fitting instructions are supplied with every Bristan Pump. These should be followed carefully.

Installed correctly your Bristan pump will give years of reliable service.
